Re: No. 03-4306
Sloan vs. Russell
District Court Case No. 01-00390

Your appeal has been docketed as case number 03-4306 with the caption that is enclosed on a separate page. Please review the caption for accuracy; it and the case number must appear on all filings.

Before any appeal under 28 U.S.C. §2254 and §2255 may proceed, the district court must have determined any liability for the appellate filing fee and certified any issue(s) for appeal. Our review of the district court docket sheet shows that the district court has not resolved either your liability for the filing fee as the appellant or issued a certification ruling. The appeal will be held in abeyance temporarily to permit the district court to make rulings on both questions.

Procedures and filing requirements in the court of appeals can be complicated or confusing. It is very important to read the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure, available in many libraries, and the Sixth Circuit Rules, available in libraries and from the clerk's office.
